

I am a highly motivated programmer and cybersecurity professional. I actively work to further my understanding of ethical hacking, penetration testing, network security, and vulnerabilities to help develop systems and practices that protect the data of users and organizations.